

Scrappy Snail's Trail

Finished size: 72" x 96"

Fabric Requirements:

Lights: 3 to 3½ yards

Darks: 4¼ to 4¾ yards

1st & 3rd borders: 1 yard

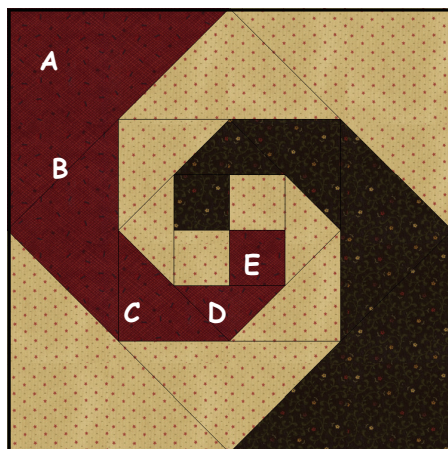

2nd border: 1 yard

Binding: ¾ yard

Note: I used lots of fat quarters from my stash for the quilt center and pieced border.

Cutting:

This block is half light and half dark. You'll cut the same number of pieces from light and dark fabric. I cut from lots of different fabrics and made my blocks completely scrappy but you could also use just two fabrics with a background. Keep all pieces separate so you don't get them mixed up. After cutting these pieces for the quilt center, put the remaining fabric aside for the pieced border.

Piece A: Cut 24 6⅞" squares of both light and dark. Cut each square in half on the diagonal once.

Piece B: Cut 12 7¼" squares of both light and dark. Cut each square in half on the diagonal twice.

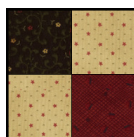

Piece C: Cut 24 3⅞" squares of both light and dark. Cut each square in half on the diagonal once.

Piece D: Cut 12 4¼" squares of both light and dark. Cut each square in half on the diagonal twice.

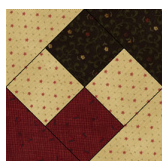

Piece E: Cut 48 2" squares of both light and dark.

Piecing:

1. Using the 2" squares of light and dark fabric, make 24 four-patch units.

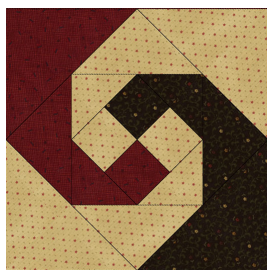

2. Following diagram, sew "D" triangles to sides of four-patch unit.

Press toward border strips. Measure width of quilt and cut two borders this measurement. Sew to top and bottom of quilt. Repeat for the second border, using the 3½" strips. Repeat again for the third border using the remaining 2" strips. Your top will now look like the diagram below.

From dark fabrics, cut 208 2" squares and 104 3½" squares

From light fabrics, cut 208 2" squares

Using the 2" squares, make 104 four-patch units as shown:

Use these four-patch units and the 3½" squares to make double four-patch units. Make 52 blocks.
